

Epp Ojamaa

Born in Estonia, Epp grew up in New Jersey, and currently resides in Princeton, where she has a mess at home..

Epp graduated from Montclair as an art teacher. While pursuing a career in teaching in Piscataway NJ, she got a MFA at Rutgers, took a sabbatical to Estonia, spent time taking art courses at the lithographic studios of Pratt Institute in Manhattan, and finally got married and started raising a family.

Epp volunteers at the Estonian Archive in Lakewood NJ, and takes a lot of photographs, even of the moon - does that make her a lunatic?

Epp looks forward to joining Latvians and Lithuanians for her second time exhibiting in Boston.
